THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

Publisher's Preface

he present book is a translation of one of the valuable religious books, on the Ṣalāt (prayer), its importance, performance and objectives written by martyr Dr. Muhammad Husayn Beheshti — may the Almighty Allah sanctify his soul. He wrote it in Persian, using a concise simple style with expressive phrases and impressive idioms; meanwhile it is covering all the subject effectively, and in a lively practicable method. Moreover the original Persian style is unmatched and trustworthy. In fact it is written by him in 1347 (H-Sh), and has been reprinted several times in Persian.

This English translation of the book is the third edition. Being checked thoroughly with the original revised Persian book, it is fully reviewed, reedited, and many necessary changes and alterations have been made. Furthermore a chart for the transliteration symbols with the Arabic-Persian letters (and examples) has been given at the beginning of the book so as to help the dear readers to thoroughly read the Arabic Islamic words and phrases. At the end of the book a glossary of non-English terms has been given.

It is hoped that this valuable book will help the committed Muslim reader to deepen practicably his faith and practice in the Islamic precepts and teachings.

In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful Glorification and Worship

he moment a man thinks of the infinite glory and absolute perfection of Allah, the Creator of the universe, he falls into adoration for Him with all his heart, pays homage with all his body and soul, to the Almighty Allah, bowing down to Him in all humility. Pushed by human nature, his genuflexion, in obedience and reverence to all this perfection and glory of Allah, is called "rukū".

When one touches the ground with one's forehead in prostration, it is called "sujūd". When one praises one's Creator, thanking and glorifying Him, it is called "hamd" and "tasbih".

Faithful Devotion and Supplication

The moment a man feels in need of help from a supernatural power, superior to matter, he turns towards the Omniscient, the Wise and the Merciful-the Creator of the Universe. He Communes with Him, discloses all his sorrows an desires, and implores His help. This is called "du'ā" (Supplication).

Divine Worship ('Ibādah)

All this glorification, adoration, love, faithful devotion, supplication and prayer to Almighty Allah, is called in the language of the Qur'an "'ibādah" (Divine worship). The Holy Qur'an maintains that this Divine worship is only for Allah, the Unique and the Incomparable, and that the worship of any other being or thing besides Him is strictly forbidden and considered "a great sin" by the Holy Qur'ān:

«وَقَضَىٰ رَبُّكَ ٱلآنَعْبُدُوا اِلَّا إِيَّاهُ».

"And your Lord has commanded that you worship none but Him..."

(The Holy Qur'an, 17:23)

In Islam, from a general viewpoint, no particular language, form or thing has been specified for the general worship of the Unique God, Allah. No specific rule or condition has been stated. The only important thing that must be strictly observed in the Islamic worship is that whatever the worshippers — the servants of Allah-do in the Divine worship must not be polluted by superstition, polytheism, ostentation, hypocrisy or pretence.

Therefore, Muslims, carefully, observing these, can adore Allah Almighty and commune with Him at any time, in any place, and in any language, form or manner they want to.

The Salāt (Prayer)

The Salāt (Prayer)

he Salāt is a specific ritual form for the worship of Allah, and it entails the expression of love and devotion to Him. It contains and associates invaluable and specific instructive aspects. And for this reason, it has a special ritual form for itself.

The Hymn of Monotheism, Virtue and Purity

The Salāt is hymn of monotheism, virtue and purity. It helps keep our mind and soul free from the agents of idolatry, polytheism, paganism, and other such pollutions which we face in the course of our daily life.

Each of us works the hardest he can to realise his objectives of his daily life, and rarely he thinks about anything else.

Toiling hard from morning to evening is something quite natural and necessary for man. It gives him vigour and joy in tackling everyday problems. His energy and intellect open up new avenues for his talents. Through his knowledge of arts, science and industry he can make new inventions, which improve his living conditions, and enable him to progress even more. But at the same time, his busy life, his egoism and selfish desires lead him to a stage that now and then, to realise his objectives, he bends and bows to every person, debasing himself. He undermines his self-respect and the true value of his real and human character, and in this manner, pollutes his actual personality, body and soul.

Some Examples of physical pollution

Few are those whose hands and feet, heads and faces, and sometimes even bodies and clothes, do not get dirty at daily work, and thus not require daily cleaning.

For instance, a teacher engaged in teaching students, who reads and writes continuously; farmer or a tiller who ploughs the field, sows the seeds, implants saplings, weeds the garden, irrigates, reaps and harvests the crops; an engineer or a worker who toils in the workshop; a doctor or a nurse who deals with patients; a housewife or a housekeeper who does household work; a merchant or a tradesman, who works at the market-place; a researcher scientist who works in the laboratory or conducts research in his field of specialisation whether in the university atmosphere or in the arena of nature; all need to wash their faces and clothes, or take a bath once or several times daily, in order to remain clean.

Likewise, our souls, are subject to different kinds of pollution; sometimes to a higher degree than that of our physical being, in dealing with others during our daily tasks. Examples of these are those arising from uncontrolled capricious passions and lusts, greed, selfishness, egotism, emulation, taking pride at victory and psychological complex resulting from disappointment and defeat; as well as jealousy, envy, enmity, revenge and hundreds of other kinds of pollution.

Such kinds of pollution blacken our souls; cause them to deviate from the right path of life, virtue, purity and piety; give way to depravity and corruption; make one forget all about Allah; and throw one into the devil's trap which encourages one to commit evil.

Cleaning of the Heart and Soul

Therefore, in the same way as we wash and clean our clothes and bodies, we must also spend time in cleaning our hearts and souls.

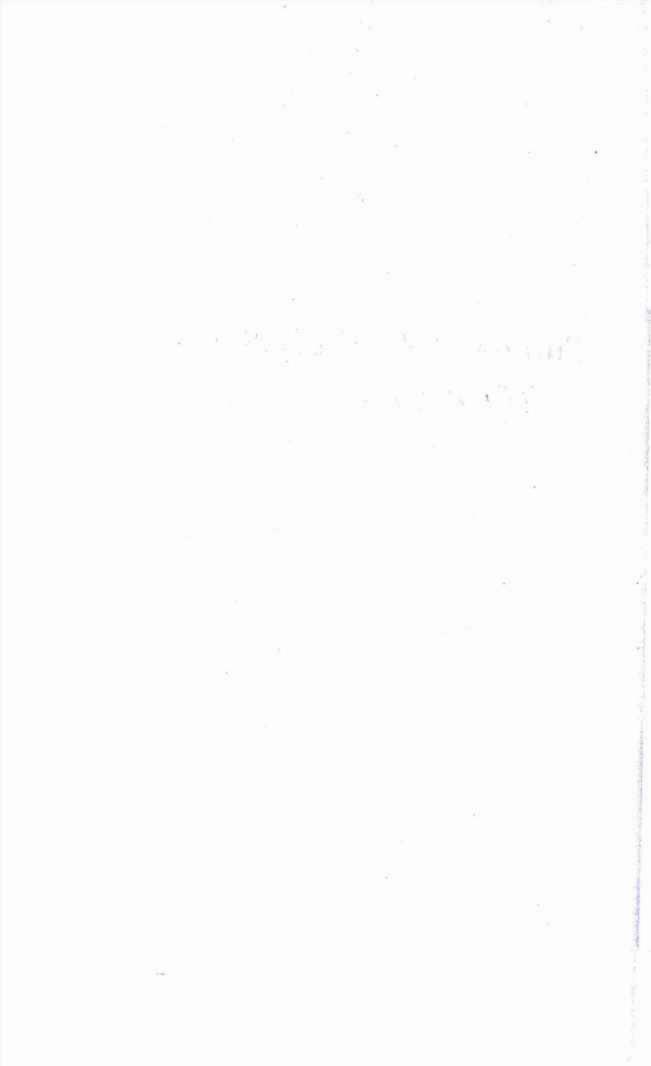

To attain the pleasure of Allah — The Primary Source of purity and perfection — we must spend some time for remembering and thanking Him, in supplication and sincere prayer. In this way we shall wash our contaminated souls with the pure and limpid water of the Divine Fountain.

This is what salāt (ritual prayer) is, which a Muslim performs several times everyday.

It is narrated that the holy prophet (S.A.) had concisely said to his companions:

"Suppose in front of the house of one of you, there is a river, and he washes himself in it five times a day, will there still remain any dirt on his body?" They said. "No, this washing will cleanse the body of all dirt." Then he said, "The five-time ṣalawāt (ritual prayers) do the same thing. With these five daily prayers Allah obliterates all one's sins and makes one pure and clean."

Timing of the Daily Salawāt . (Five Ritual Prayers)

Timing of the Daily Salawāt (Five Ritual Prayers)

- 1. Subh (morning): At the dawn or commencement of the morning.
- 2. Zuhr (noon): At midday
- 3. 'Asr (afternoon): About 2 to 3 hours afternoon.2
- 4. Maghrib (evening): After sunset.3

and of the city of the start of the start

'Ishā' (night fall): At night when it gets dark.⁴

These are the original timings for performing the salawāt (prayers), and it is better that each ritual prayer is performed at the right time. But for each one of the five ritual salawāt, extended timing has been fixed so that if a man, because of work or some other constraints, could not perform his salawāt at the afore-stated time, he can have more sufficient time at his disposal.

The following is the duration for each şalāt.

- ☐ Salātus-Ṣubḥ: From dawn to sunrise.
- ☐ Salātuz-Zuhr. From midday to sunset.
- □ Salātul-'Aṣr. After Salātuz-Zuhr until sunset.
- ☐ Salātul-Maghrib: From maghrib until midnight.5
- ☐ Ṣālātul-'Ishā': After Ṣalātul-Maghrib until midnight.⁵

When a Muslim gets up in the morning, he performs the salāt to enable him commence his daily work with a pure heart, goodwill, and attention towards the Almighty Allah.

At noon, during his lunch break, he temporarily stops his work and again performs the salāt. He does so, because as he eats to provide Fresh energy and joy to his body, he enriches and cheers his soul through performing the Salāt. Before resuming his job in the afternoon, he performs the salāt again so that he may work, with Allah in mind.

After sunset (evening), when it is usually time to stop the daily work and enjoy dinner, he once again performs the salāt, so that he may nourish his soul while gratifying his body with food.

At night, when one about to retire to bed, he once again stands up before Allah and performs his şalāt. So, just as he started the day by remembering and praying to Allah Almighty, he ends it with şalāt and remembrance of Allah. Thus, he goes to sleep with a comforted soul and a pure heart.

Allah in the Holy Qur'an says:

«وَ آفِيمِ الصَّلُوةَ طَرَفَيِ النَّهَارِ وَ زُلَفَاً مِنَ اللَّيْلِ إِنَّ الْحَسَنَاتِ يُذْهِبْنَ السَّبِّاتِ ذَلِكَ ذِكْرِي لِلذَّاكِرِينَ»

"And keep up the şalāt at the two ends of the day and at some parts of the night. Surely, good deeds take away ill deeds. This is a reminder for the mindful."

The Holy Qur'an says:

بِهَا اَبُّهَا السَّذِينَ آمَنُوا اِذَاقَمْنُمُ اِلَى الصَّلُوةِ فَاغْسِلُوا وُجُوهَكُمْ وَاَيْدِيكُمْ اِلَى الْمَرَافِقِ وَامْسَحُوا بِرُؤْسِكُمْ وَآرْجُلَكُم اِلَى الْكَعْبَيْنِ.

"O you who believe! When you rise up for the Salāt, wash your faces and your hands as far as the elbows, and wipe, your heads and feet to the ankles..."

(The Holy Qur'an 5: 6)

Wudu, should be performed with pure niyyah (intention), and for the sake of the Almighty Allah.

If any part of the body becomes najis (impure), we should wash it and also wear tāhir (pure) clothes.8

hen stand facing the Ka'bah, the House renowned for the remembrance of Prophet Ibrahim (A.S.) the hero and champion of monotheism along with his son Prophet Islmā'il (A.S.). These two, the father and the son of pure temperament, once built this House at Makkah for the worship of Allah, the One and the Unique.

Islam has declared this House as the very focal point of monotheism, and the Muslims have been ordered to turn their faces towards it, wherever in the world they may be, during the performance of their salāt so that it becomes the focal centre of monotheism. The Holy Qur'an says:

"And from whatsoever place you set out, turn your face towards Al-Masjidu-Ḥarām (the Sacred Mosque); and wherever you are, turn your faces towards it..."

(The Holy Qur'an, 2: 150)

The place where we perform salāt and our dress should be unobjectionable, i.e., not having been acquired by force, nor by violation of the rights of others, nor these should be prohibited from other Islamic viewpoints.

How to perform the Salāt

t first we should condition our soul for worshipping the Almighty Allah. Then by expelling all other thoughts from our mind, we focus our entire attention towards Him.

Beginning with Takbīr after Resolving for Salāt (Fig. 1)

In all sincerity and whole-heartedly we utter "Allāhu Akbar" i.e., Allah is the Greatest. Allah is Supreme and Sublime. Allah is incomprehensible and beyond our imagination.

Thus, with the utterance of Allāhu Akbar, the greatness of all other things vanishes from the eyes of the worshipper. He then thinks of nothing but the grandeur of Allah and with all his heart and soul, he stands humbly before his Creator for salāt and glorification.

Standing Upright (Thinking Solely of Allah) (Fig. 2)

From this moment, until the end of the salāt, ever facing the Ka'bah (Fig. 2), he keeps on addressing Allah lovingly and praisingly, refraining from speaking or replying to anyone around him. Next in adoration and praise of Allah, we first read Sūratul-Ḥamd, paying careful attention to its valuable meaning.

بِسْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمَٰنِ الرَّحيمِ

Bismi-Llāhi-r-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥīm
(In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.)

ٱلْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ

Al-ḥamdu li-Llāhi Rabbi-l-ālamin (All praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the worlds.)

A Muslim begins every work and every speech with the Name of Allah. In the Islamic society, everything is begun with the Name of Allah Almighty.

In Islam, praise is due only to Allah, whose perfection is infinite. Besides Him none (nobody and nothing) is worthy of praise. One can express one's appreciation for someone or something, but within the limit of his or its worth. Thanks should be given in accordance with the service and kindness rendered. But appreciation and thanks must not take the form of flattery. Flattery and exaggerated praise is detrimental to morality and calamitous to society.

An exaggerating panegyrist and flatterer destroys his own personality and through his exaggerated eulogy and flattery, he debases himself. He further encourages people to project false images of themselves. These persons become increasingly more showy and self-conceited. They soon stop reflecting upon their own shortcomings to which they turn a blind eye, and show aversion to criticism of their behaviour by others.

Allowing themselves to become the victims of these mean flatterers, they become self-centred, obstinate, proud and dangerous idols, who consciously or unconsciously, expect all others to respect them even to the point of adoration. They expect blind acceptance of their thoughts and views and strict obedience to their orders.

Islam stresses constantly that:

"Praise is due only to Allah"

Thus, Islam sees to it that such pompous and arrogant "idols" do not appear in the monotheistic Islamic society, thereby ensuring impartial and logical criticism of anyone, irrespective of rank or position.

ألرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِبِمِ

Ar-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥīm.
(The Beneficent, the Merciful.)

ماليك يؤم الدين

Māliki Yawmi-d-Dīn.
(The Master of the Day of Judgement.)

Although a Muslim believes in the mercy and forgiveness of Allah and is hopeful of His Compassion, yet on the other hand, as Allah is Just, he fears His punishment. He does not get self-conceited, and knows that his good and bad deeds will be weighed on the Day of Judgement.

رِاتِاكَ نَعْبُدُ وَإِيَّاكَ نَسْتَعِينَ

Iyyāka na'budu wa Iyyāka nasta'in (You (Alone) we worship and you (Alone) we ask for help.) A Muslim always relies upon Allah and the abounding possibilities and power bestowed upon him by providence, and never extends his hand to any individual for help.

Of course he does accept the help of others in the performance of his task. But this help is either by way of contract or out of friendship and cordiality or as per the rules, and regulations, which are by themselves a kind of social contracts. However, in return for any help rendered, he pays for it in cash or credit through his dealings; neither others' help to him nor his help to others has any tint of pompous bossiness or charging obligation for favour done.

A Muslim neither accepts any aid with lordliness, nor does he look for help from anyone with expectation and greed.

He instead relies on Allah, and works hard, utilising his potentials and Allah-gifted faculties. He is happy with a moderate income which meets his daily needs, and leads an honest and pious life:

إهدنا الصراط المستقيم

Ihdina-ș-șirăța-I-mustaqim (Guide us to the straight path.)

صراط الذين أنعمت عليهم

Sirata-Iladhina an'amta 'alayhim.

(The path of those whom you have favoured;

غَيْرِ الْمَغْضُوبِ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلاَ الضَّالِّينَ ghayri-l-maghḍūbi 'alayhim wala-ḍḍāllīn not [the path] of those who incur your wrath, nor [of] those who go astray.) This is the most basic prayer (supplication) and faithful devotion which every Muslim makes in his daily Ṣalawāt. Communing heartily with Allah, he prays to Him to keep him always on the right path in life; the path of those on whom He has been gracious and bountiful and he can benefit from it; not of those with whom He has been angry (due to their disobedience or carelessness), nor of those who go astray, and not to let his valuable potentials be wasted in wrong directions.

Meanwhile he prays to Allah to grant him his prayer.

The first surah (chapter) of Al-Ḥamd (the Opening of the Book) ends here.

After this sūrah, Al-Ḥamd, the worshipper recites any other surah from the Holy Qur'ān like surah 112, "At-Tawḥīd" (Monotheism) as follows:

بِشْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيمِ

Bismi-Llāhi-r-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥim
(In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful.)

قُلْ هُوَاللَّهُ أَحَدُ

Qul Huwa-Llāhu Aḥad (Say: He is Allah, the One.)

الله الصَّمَدُ

Allāhu-ṣ-Ṣamad
(Allah is free from want, and eternally besought of all)

لَمْ بَلِدْ وَلَمْ بُولَدْ

Lam yalid wa lam yūlad (He begets not, nor is He begotten.) Wa lam yakun lahū Kufuwan aḥad (And there is none comparable unto Him.)

This is a Muslim's faith in Allah, which is against other superstitious beliefs. For instance, most Christians believe in the "Trinity", i.e., the combination of God, viz, a father, who has a son, and a third god, namely, the Holy spirit, Gabriel.

They combine these three into one and worship them in "Trinity of God". Also, they stand before the statue of Virgin Mary, the mother of Jesus, or other prominent religious figures for supplication and glorification.

Rukū'(Fig. 3)

After extolling Allah, praying to and imploring Him, the Muslim worshipper bows down touching the knees with his hands to honour His Magnificence, and in this posture of rukū' (genuflexion) he praises Allah and expresses love and sincere devotion to Him in the following words.

سُبْلُحانَ رَبِّى الْعَظيمِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ.

Subḥāna Rabbiya-l-'Azimi wa bi-ḥamdih (My Lord the Great is free from any imperfection; and praise be upon Him.)

Or, he says:

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ، سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ، سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ

Subḥāna-Llāh, Ṣubḥāna-Llāh, Subḥāna-Llāh (Allah is free from any imperfection.)

By uttering these words in this posture, the prayerperformer repeats the slogan of monotheism meaning to say:

"O Allah Almighty. The only Grandeur and Magnificence that makes me bow and bend down to the knees is Yours! I shall never bow and genuflect before anyone and anything in obeisance and homage except you. I shall keep my head upright in front of all natural and human powers, and shall never allow this free will and reason, and straight stature that you have given me, to genuflect before these powers."

This is how a Muslim, who treads the path of Islam feels and thinks. He keeps his head upright before all men of power, position, wealth and rank, and bends or bows before none.

He then lifts his head from this position, "rukū" and stands upright.

Sujūd (Prostration) (Fig. 4)

And again, in the presence of this 'Divine perfection', he touches the ground with his forehead for sujūd submitting before His Magnificence in all humbleness and humility. He places the tips of the big toes of both feet, the knees, the palms and the forehead on the ground in sujūd and praises Allah saying:

سُبْلُحَانَ رَبِّى ٱلآغْلَىٰ وِبِحَمْدِهِ.

Subḥāna Rabbiya-1-'A' lā wa biḥamdih

(My Lord the Most High, is free from any imperfection; and praise be upon Him.)

Or, he says:

Subhana-Llah, Subhana-Llah, Subhana-Llah (Allah is free from any imperfection.)

Uttering these words, while still in sujūd, which is a sign of complete humility and submission, the worshipper once again repeats the spiritual tone of monotheism in his heart, meaning to say:

"Others prostrate for the wealthy and powerful beings other than Allah, but since I am a Muslim, I prostrate on the ground only for Allah, Who is the Greatest. And I shall never prostrate in the presence of anyone and anything except Him."

He then raises his head from the ground and sits upright at ease. Having done so, he once again prostrates, placing his forehead on the ground and repeating the abovementioned words of glorification and praise of Allah. He then lifts his head off the ground and sits upright for tashahhud (saying the two testimonies), (Fig. 5)

The Raka'āt (Joined Units) of Ṣalāt

The Raka'āt (Joined Units) of Salāt

rom the time of reciting 'Sūratul-Ḥamd until now, i.e. at the point of lifting the head off the ground, is called "one rak'ah of Ṣalāt", i.e. one related unit of Ṣalāt. This is because it includes one 'rukū''. Each of the daily ṣalawāt consists of either two, three or four raka'at (rak'ahs).

Ṣalātuṣ-Ṣubḥ is a two-rak'ah ṣalāt. Ṣalātul-Maghrib is of three raka'āt. Ṣalātuz-Zuhr, ṣalātul'Aṣr, and ṣalātul-'Ishā' are of four raka'āt, but while travelling these become two-rak'ah ṣalāt each.

For those who know little abut şalāt, in order to make it easy for them to learn, we explain here only the wājib (obligatory) portion of each of the daily şalawāt in detail (leaving now the desirable acts).

1- Şalātus-Şubḥ (Morning Prayer)

After wuḍū', and other preliminaries (preparatory actions), with clean heart, away from any kind of dissimulation, affectation, etc., we stand up for Ṣalāt facing the "Qiblah (Makkah)" and say:

آللَّهُ آكْبَرُ.

Allāhu Akbar.

And we recite Sūratul-Ḥamd as follows:

بشيم الله الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِبيم

آلْ حَمْدُ لِلّهِ رَبِّ الْعَالَمِينَ ۚ آلرِّحْمَٰنِ الرَّحِيمِ ۗ مَالِكِيَوْمِ الدِّينِ ۗ إِيَّاكَ آ نَعْبُدُ وَإِيَّاكَ نَسْتَعِينُ ٩ إِهْدِنَا الصَّرَاطَ الْمُسْتَفِيمِ * صِرَاطَ الَّذِينَ آنْعَمْتَ عَلَيْهِمْ غَيْرِ الْمَغْضُوبِ عَلَيْهِمْ وَلاَ الصَّالِينَ ٧

1- Bismi-Llāhi-r-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥim

2- Al-ḥamdu li-Llāhi Rabbi—l-ʾālamin 3. Ar-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥim. 4- Māliki Yawmi-d-Dīn. 5- Iyyāka naʿbudu wa Iyyāka nastaʿin 6- Ihdina-ṣ-ṣirāṭal-mustaqim 7- Ṣirāṭa-lladhīna anʿamta ʿalayhim; ghayri-l-maghḍūbi ʿalayhim wala-ḍḍāllīn.)

We then recite another surah from the Holy Qur'an, such as "At-Tawhid".

بِسْمِ اللّهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّجِيمِ قُــل هُـوَاللّهُ آحَدْ ٢ اَللّهُ الطَّمَدُ ٣ لَمْ يَلِدْ وَلَمْ بُولَـدْ وَلَمْ يَكُنْ لَهُ كُفُواً اَحَدُ »'

Bismi-Llāhi-r-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥīm (1- Qul Huwa-Llāhu Aḥad 2- Allāhu-ṣ-Ṣamad. 3- Lam yalid wa lam yūlad 4- Wa lam yakun lahu kufuwan aḥad.)

We then bow in humility and reverence for the Greatness of Allah, resting the palms upon the knees in rukū'. We glorify and praise Allah in this position saying:

سُبْحَانَ رَبِّيَ الْعَظِيمِ وَبِحَمْدِهِ

Subḥāna Rabbiya-l- 'Azīmi wa bi-hamdih.

Or:

سُبْحانَ اللهِ، سُبْحانَ اللهِ، سُبْحانَ اللهِ

Subhana-Llāh, Subhana-Llāh, Subḥana-Llāh

We then stand upright, and go down to perform sujud before Allah, the Most High. By placing on the ground the tips of the big toes, knees, and palms, and resting the forehead on the ground, stone, wood, mat or the like, we perform sujūd. Here again we glorify and praise Allah Almighty, Who is Greater than all, saying:

سُبْحانَ رَبِّي أَلاَّ عْلَىٰ وِبِحَمْدِهِ.

Subḥāna Rabbiya-l-'A 'lā wa bi-ḥamdih.

Or:

سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ، سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ، سُبْحَانَ اللّهِ.

Subḥāna-Llāh, Subḥāna-Llāh, Subḥāna-Llāh

We then lift the head and sit at ease.

Once again we perform sujud, as explained before, placing the forehead on the ground saying:

سُبْحُانَ رَبِّيَ أَلاَّ عْلَى وِيحَمْدِهِ.

Subḥāna Rabbiya-l-'A`lā wa bi-ḥamdih.

Or:

سُبْحًانَ اللهِ، سُبْحًانَ اللهِ، سُبْحًانَ اللهِ.

Subḥāna-Llāh, Subḥāna-Llāh, Subḥāna-Llāh

We then raise the head and sit at ease, with folded knees.

Thus, we complete one rak'ah of the two-rak'ah Salātus-Şubḥ.

We then proceed with the second rak'ah. We get up and stand still. We recite "Sūratul-Ḥamd" and another surah such as "At-Tawhid while standing. We then perform rukū', and two sajdahs, as described earlier.

We then raise the head from the second sajdah, to complete the second rak'ah, sit with folded knees as in (Fig. 5) and recite:

آشْهَدُ آنْ لا إله إلا اللهُ وَحْدَهُ لا شَرِبِكَ لَهُ.

Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa-Llāh, waḥdahu lā sharīka lah.

(I bear witness that there is no god but Allah; He is Alone, and to Him there is no partner.)

وَ أَشْهَدُ أَنَّ مُحَمَّداً عَبْدُهُ وَرَسُولُهُ.

Wa ashhadu anna Muḥammadan 'Abduhu wa Rasūluh.

(I bear witness that Muhammad (S.A.) is His servant and His Messenger.)

ٱللَّهُمَّ صَلَّ عَلَىٰ مُحَمَّدٍ وَالرَّمُحَمَّدٍ.

Allāhumma şalli 'alā Muḥammadin wa Āli Muḥammad

(O Allah, bless Muḥammad (S.A.) and his Descendants.)

ٱلسَّلَامُ عَلَيْكَ آتُبُهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَهُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَانُهُ.

As-salāmu 'alayka ayyuha-n-Nabiyyu wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh.

(Peace, mercy and blessings of Allah be upon you O Prophet!)

ٱلسَّلامُ عَلَيْنًا وَ عَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ.

As-salāmu 'alayna wa 'alā 'ibādi-Llāhi-șṣāliḥin

(Peace be upon us and all Allah's righteous servants)

ٱلسُّلامُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَهُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ.

As-salāmu alaykum wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh¹⁰

(Peace, mercy and blessings of Allah be upon you all.)

Thus, the salātus-subh ends here.

In this last part of the ṣalāt once again the prayerperformer acknowledges the uniqueness of Allah and says clearly:

"Muḥammad (S.A.) is a servant and Messenger of Allah. And I pray to Allah to send His blessings to him, his descendants, and all other righteous believers."

Muslims utter this sentence: "Muḥammad (S.A.) is a servant of Allah," at least nine times a day. They do so to avoid going astray like the Christians who exalt Jesus from the position of servitude to Allah to the state of Divinity, or semi-Divinity, or call him the Son of Allah.

Muslims seek peace and blessings of Allah for the prophet (S.A.), the great leader of Islam, his infallible descendants, and the righteous. They declare that all Muslims, the righteous and pious believers, to whatever corner of the world they may belong, are from one Islamic Ummah. This attachment prevails so widely and deeply among them that even when a Muslim performs salāt alone, he feels himself among his other Muslim brothers. Thus, at the end of each salāt, he says salām (greetings) to them all, addressing them directly with these words "Assalāmu 'alaykum wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh" (Peace and Allah's mercy and blessings be upon you all.)

2. Şalātuz-Zuhr (Noon Prayer)

After wudū' and other preliminaries, with a clean heart, free from all dissimulation, affectation and pretence, we stand up facing the "Qiblah" with the niyyah (intention) for four rak'ahs and we say "Allāhu Akbar".

Rak ah 1

We then recite "Sūratul-Ḥamd' and follow it with another surah from the Holy Qur'ān such as "At-Tawḥid.

We the perform rukū', after which we rise and stand upright. We then perform sujūd, and then lift up the head and sit upright. We again perform sujūd after which we sit at ease with folded knees (Fig. 5)

Rak'ah 2

We then get up and stand upright to perform the second rak'ah of the şalāt.

Once again we recite "Sūratul-Ḥamd", and another surah from the Holy Qur'ān or the same surah of "At-Tawḥid".

We then perform rukū', after which we rise and stand upright. Having done so, we perform sujūd.

We then sit at ease (Fig. 5). This is followed by performing the second sujūd (sajdah) after which we sit at ease and say:

آشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا اِللهَ اِلَّا اللَّهُ وَخْدَهُ لَا شَرِبكَ لَهُ. وَآشْهَدُ آنَ مُحَمَّداً عَبْدُهُ وَرَسُوْلُهُ. آللَهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَىٰ مُحَمَّدٍ وَالِ مُحَمَّدٍ.

"Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa-Llāh, waḥdahu lā sharīka lah. Wa ashhadu anna Muḥammadan 'Abduhu wa Rasūluh. Allāhumma şalli 'alā Muhammad."

Rak'ah 3

We then stand up to perform the third rak'ah of the salāt. To do so, we recite "Sūratul-Hamd", or instead say:

سُبْحانَ اللَّهِ وَالْحَمْدُ للَّهِ وَلا إِلَّهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَاللَّهُ ٱكْبَرُ.

"Subḥāna-Llāhi wal-ḥamdu li-Llāhi wa lā ilāha illa-Llāhu wa-Llāhu Akbar."

(Allah is Transcendent and devoid of any imperfection; all praise is due to Allah; there is no god but Allah; and Allah is the Greatest).

After this we perform rukū' and then rise and stand upright. We then perform sujūd, and then raise the head and sit still. After this we again perform the second sujūd, and then stand up to perform the fourth rak'ah. Here, we once again recite "Sūratul-Ḥamd", or instead say:

سُبْحَانَ اللَّهِ وَالْحَمْدُ لِلَّهِ وَلا إِلَّهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَاللَّهَ ٱكْبَرُهُ

"Subḥāna-Llāhi wal-ḥamdu li-Llāhi wa lā illāha illa-Llāhu wa-Llāhu Akbar."

After this, we perform rukū', after which we stand upright. We then perform sujūd, raise the head from this position and sit still as in (Fig. 5). We perform sujūd once again, then raise the head and sit upright, and recite the tashahhud and salām successively as follows:

أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لَا إِلَّهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَحْدَهُ لَا شَرِيكَ لَهُ.

وَ آشْهَدُ آنَا مُحَمَّداً عَبْدُهُ وَرَسُولُهُ. اللّهُمَّ صَلِّ عَلَىٰ مُحَمَّدٍ وَالِ مُحَمَّدٍ آلسَّلامُ عَلَيْكَ آيُّهَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللّهِ وَبَرَكَانُهُ.

آلسَّلامُ عَلَيْنَا وَعَلَى عِبَادِ اللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ. ٱلسَّلامُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَاتُهُ

"Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa-Llāh, waḥdahu lā sharīka lah.
Wa ashhadu anna Muḥammadan 'Abduhu wa Rasūluh.
Allāhumma şalli 'alā Muḥammadin wa Āli Muḥammad.
As-salāmu 'alaykum ayyuha-n-Nabiyyu wa rahmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh. As-salāmu 'alaynā wa 'alā 'ibādi-Llāhişşāliḥin. As-salāmu 'alaykum wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh."

3. Şalātul-'Aşr (Afternoon Prayer)

This șalāt is performed exactly as Ṣalātuz-Zuhr.

Şalātul-Maghrib (After Sunset [Early Evening] Prayer)

Salātul-Maghrib is of three raka at (rak ahs). Therefore, after raising the head from the second sujūd (sajdah) of the third rak ah instead of getting up to perform the fourth rak ah, we remain seated and recite tashahhud and end with salām as follows:

أَشْهَدُ أَنْ لا إِلَّهَ إِلَّا اللَّهُ وَخُدَّهُ لا شَرِيكَ لَهُ.

وَ ٱشْهَدُ آنَّ مُحَمَّداً عَبْدُه وَ رَسُولُهُ.

ٱللَّهُمَّ صَلَّ عَلَىٰ مُحَمَّدٍ وَأَلِ مُحَمَّدٍ.

ٱلسَّلامُ عَلَيْكَ آتُهُمَا النَّبِيُّ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَانُهُ.

آ لسَّلامُ عَلَيْنا وَ عَلَى عِبَادِاللَّهِ الصَّالِحِينَ.

ٱلسَّلامُ عَلَيْكُمْ وَرَحْمَةُ اللَّهِ وَبَرَكَانُّهُ.

"Ashhadu an lā ilāha illa-Llāh, waḥdahu lā sharika lah. Wa ashhadu anna Muḥammadan 'Abduhu wa Rasūluh. Allāhumma şalli 'alā Muḥammadin wa Āli Muḥammad. As-salāmu 'alayka ayyuha-n-Nabiyyu wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh. As-salāmu 'alaynā wa 'alā 'ibādi-Llāhi-ṣṣāliḥin. As-salāmu 'alaykum wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh."

5- Ṣalātul-'Ishā' (Dusk or [Early Night] Prayer)

This salāt is performed exactly as the Salātuz-Zuhr.11

Ṣalāt Deep Influence on Man

Salāt Deep Influence on Man

T he şalāt (Islamic prayer) can be called as follows:

"The hymn of monotheism and worshipping of the only one God, Allah."

"The hymn which protects man's personality."

"The hymn of purity and virtue."

"The hymn of peace and good relations with all the righteous men of Allah."

It is the hymn which all Muslims must recite five times daily, so that remembrance of and faith in Allah become stronger, enabling man to sustain and keep alive his high human qualities and guard against the deviation from the right Divine path. It guards him too, against the pollution of attributing associates to Allah Almighty, getting morally corrupt by the influence of enticing beauties or worldly pleasures, fear of the self-centred powers, and disagreement with Allah's righteous servants. It also safeguards him from all other spiritual corruptions.

It is like the hymn (that) the soldiers recite every morning and evening, to keep the spirit of heroism and courage alive, or like the hymn the pioneers recite to strengthen their spirit of benevolence and beneficence. The following Qur'anic verse reflects the profound influence of the "Salāt" on the personality of man.

أَنْلُ مَا أُوحِيَ إِلَيْكَ مِنَ الْكِنَابِ وَآفِمِ الصَّلُوةَ إِذَّ الصَّلُوهُ تَنْهَىٰ عَيِ الْفَحُدُاءِ وَالْمُنْكَرِ وَلَذِكُرُ اللَّهِ آكْبَرُ وَاللَّهُ يَعْلَمُ مَا تَصْنَعُونَ.

> "Recite that which has been revealed to you of the Book, and keep up the şalāt. Surely, the şalāt keeps (one) away from indecency and evil, and certainly remembrance, of Allah is the greatest, and Allah knows what you do." (The Holy Our'ān 29: 45)

Ṣalāt brings man spiritual felicity and prevents his soul from getting dull, sad, and despondent.

Salāt is an action which develops the sense of duty and responsibility. A committed man who makes a point of performing salawāt (prayers) regularly, cultivates a commendable habit, and at least respects one moral obligation and Islamic duty. This habit discourages carelessness and negligence on his part towards other duties. It makes him a useful person and helps him to progress in the course of his life. The Holy Qur'ān says:

و اشتَعبُوا بِالصَّبْرِ وَالصَّلُوةِ وَ إِنَّهَا لَكَبيرَةً إلَّا عَلَى الْخَاشِعينَ. ٱلَّذِينَ يَظُنُّونَ ٱنَّهُمْ مُلَا قُوا رَبِّهِمْ وَٱنَّهُمْ إَلَيْهِ رَاجِمُونَ.

"And seek help through patience and şalāt, and truly it is hard except for the humble-minded, who know that they shall meet their Lord, and that they shall return to Him."

(The Holy Qur'an, 2: 45-46)

Salāt to some people seems to be a burdensome duty. But to those, who have faith in the eternal life (of the Hereafter) and believe that they should always keep themselves pure, virtuous and away from evil, and strive towards becoming a relatively perfect being so that they may return to Allah, the All-Perfect, the Almighty, the Merciful, is always an exhilarating, delightful and pleasant experience.

Islam right from its early days, has invited Muslims to perform salawāt (prayers). In the beginning, when none other than the prophet (S.A.), his wife Khadijah, and his cousin (uncle's son), 'Alī (A.S.) had embraced Islam, the prophet (S.A.) and 'Alī (A.S.) used to go to the valleys around Makkah to perform salāt.¹²

Those who opposed Islam used to ridicule the prayerperformers and sometimes, even attack and harm them. To perform their ṣalāt in peace, the Muslims used to go to the valleys around Makkah and perform their ṣalāt there in congregation. But the opponents often used to obstruct them, and occasionally, clashes also occurred.¹³

The pressure, harm and ridicule from antagonists, instead of discouraging the Muslims from performing their obligatory salawāt, rather served to increase their pleasure in performing this pleasing duty of worshipping Allah.

Prophet Muḥammad (S.A.) had told them that ṣalāt is the main slogan of monotheism and that Muslims should never neglect it. Banu Thaqif, was one of the great tribes which settled in the city of Ta'if and its suburbs. In the eighth year of Hijrah, i.e., about three years before the passing away of prophet Muhammad (S.A.), Banu Thaqif sent some delegates to Madinah to discuss about their conversion to Islam, on certain conditions.

These delegates informed the Holy prophet (S.A.) that the Banu Thaqif tribe would set forth a proposal for accepting Islam that they be exempted from performing the ṣalawāt (prayers).

The Prophet (S.A.) answered:

"...Insofar as salāt is concerned, if the conversion to Islam is not accompanied by performing the salawāt, then this conversion is of no value...."

14

If a Muslim finds himself in a situation where he is unable to perform his salāt in a normal way, he should then do so in whatever way he is able to do in that particular situation like: sitting, lying on bed, riding on a horse, in a car, train or a plane, or sitting behind a tank or any other armoured vehicle, etc.

Ṣalātul-Jamāʻah (Congregational Prayer)

Salātul-Jamā'ah (Congregational Prayer)

slam emphasises that Muslims should lead a community life, and even perform the salāt in congregation. If there is a mosque, they should perform salāt there. Otherwise, they should gather at a suitable place, such as a desert, a school-hall, a workshop, a factory, or a house.

In case there is place where salātul-jamā ah is performed, then everyone should try to leave his home or office and join other Muslim brothers there to perform the salāt together.

In salātul-jamā'ah, the prayer-performers stand up in orderly rows, all facing the Qiblah. One person stands up ahead to lead the salāt, and he is called the "imām" (leader) of the salātul-jamā'ah.

Ṣalātul-jamā ah is normally led by the highest ranking representative of the Islamic government in each region. Or else, people select from among themselves a proper and worthy person to lead the ṣalāt.

In salātul-jamā ah, Sūratul-Ḥamd and another surah like At-Tawḥid in the first and second rak ahs are recited by the imām only, while the other prayer-performers remain silent and just listen. But in the remaining raka āt, all the other prayer phrases are recited together by all.

areas (within a radius of about six kilometres) assemble and perform Salātul-Jumu'ah. In this salāt, the imām, of the Jamā'ah first stands up facing the audience and begins his speech by praising and thanking Allah, and by reciting verses from the Holy Qur'ān and Hadith. He recites and explains at least one surah from the Holy Qur'ān. He talks about the teachings of Islam, and discusses the socio-political problems of the Islamic Ummah, in two sermons (Khuṭbahs). At the end of the second khuṭbah, everybody stands up together to perform "two-rak'ah" Ṣalātul-Jumu'ah which is similar to Ṣalātul-Subh.

In fact, the two Khutbahs delivered, before the beginning of the salāt, are counted as two rak'ahs of salāt.

Wherever, a just statesman rules in a dominion, the Salātul-Jumu'ah must be held. Wherever his representative is present, he himself must personally take the responsibility of leading Salātul-Jumu'ah. If he cannot do so, he must appoint someone else in his place.

And as soon as the Adhān of Ṣalātul-Jumu'ah is heard, all Muslims must stop working and come to the place where the salāt is being held.

يًا ٱلله الَّذِينَ آمَنُمُوا إِذَا نُؤدِى لِلصَّلُوةِ مِنْ يَوْمِ الْجُمُّعَةِ فَأَسْعَوْا إِلَىٰ ذِكْرِ اللَّهِ وَذَرُوا الْبَيْعَ ذَلِكُمْ خَيْرُ لَكُمْ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ تَعْلَمُونَ.

> "O you who believe! When the call is heard for the salat on Friday, then hasten to the remembrance of Allah and leave off trading. That is better for you, if you know."

(The Holy Qur'an 62:9)

Once the salāt is over, everybody can leave and resume his work.

The Holy Qur'an says:

فَاذَا قَضِيَتِ الصَّلُوهُ فَانْتَشِرُوا فِي أَلاَ رْضِ وَابْتَغُوا مِنْ فَضْلِ اللَّهِ وَاذْكُرُوا ٱللَّه كَثبراً لَمَلَّكُمْ تُفْلِحُون.

"And when the prayer (salāt) is ended, then disperse in the land and seek of Allah's grace, and remember Allah much, that you may be successful."

The Holy Qur'an 62: 10)

If the government is not headed by a just man, or if a Muslim community is settled in a certain place where a representative of the government of the just Imam is absent, it is better that a just and qualified person be chosen from among them who can deliver two khutbahs (sermons) before the salāt, and lead Salātul-Jumu'ah. Otherwise, they can perform Salātuz-Zuhr as usual.

The first Ṣalātul-Jumu 'ah after Hijrah

When the Holy Prophet (S.A.) emigrated from Makkah to Madinah, he stopped in its suburb at a place called "Quba", where a small tribe of Arabs resided: A group of Muslims from different corners of the city came to see and welcome the Prophet (S.A.), while some others who were not residents of the city also joined them.

The Prophet (S.A.) stayed in "Qubā" from Sunday to Thursday, the period during which he constructed a small mosque which is known as "Masjid Qubā".

This was the first Islamic mosque which was built by the Muslims.¹⁵

On Friday Morning, the Prophet (S.A.) left Quba for the city, along with other Muslims. At noon they reached a valley where another small tribe of Arabs lived. Here, the Prophet (S.A) performed Ṣalātul-Jumu'ah. He first went ahead and stood before the ranks of Muslims present there and spoke to them about Islam, and about their duties during those early days of founding the Islamic government which they were expected to shoulder, in two sermons (khuṭbahs). Then he led them in congregation to perform together the two-rak'ah Ṣalātul-Jumu'ah.

Ṣalātul-'Īd (The Two-'Īd Prayers — 'Īdul-Fiṭr and Al-'Aḍḥā)

I n Islam, there are two formal festivals: "'Îdul-Fiţt" and "'Îdul-Qurbān" or "'Îdul-'Adḥā".

'Idul-Fitr, is celebrated at the end of fasting at the close of the Ramadān month, on the first of the lunar month "Shawwāl". Muslims, after fasting throughout the month of Ramadān, break their fast on this day and having successfully completed this sacred worship, celebrate this festival together.

'Îdul-'Aḍḥā is celebrated on the tenth of the lunar month, Ehul-Ḥijjah when the main part of the ḥajj rituals has been performed by the Muslims, who go to Makkah to perform ḥajj. On this day, the Muslims sacrifice a sheep, a cow, or a camel, a part of which they eat themselves and the remaining meat is distributed to the needy.

Throughout the world Muslims celebrate this day, because of the completion of the main part of the magnificent hajj rituals.

These two great Festivals of Islam are the festivals of action and deed. During the 'Idul-Fitr festival, Muslims enjoy the feast for having successfully completed their fasting throughout the month of Ramadan. During the festival of 'Idul-'Adha, they celebrate the achievement of the Islamic Ummah for performing the magnificent rituals of hajj.

To celebrate these two annual Islamic festivals, Muslims from every corner of the city or town gather together in a area such as a square, a field or an open area of a desert, or a large hall if weather conditions do not permit an open-air gathering. They then joyfully say together "Allāhu Akbar", and praise Allah.

After this, they start glorifying Allah and perform the two-rak'ah şalāt in congregation.

At the end of the ṣalāt, the prayer-performers altogether say loudly "Allāhu Akbar" several times. And then the imām stands up facing the worshippers, and delivers two khuṭbahs (sermons).

Usually after the ṣalāt, the worshippers are offered some light refreshment.

Salātul-Jumu'ah and Salātul-'Īd are not only congregational prayers, but also a symbol of Islamic, social and political unity. Therefore, the responsibility to hold such congregations is among the prime duties of the Islamic government.

In places where the ruling government is other than an Islamic one, the Muslims must themselves take the necessary initiatives to establish these pure and valuable Islamic congregations for the worship and adoration of Allah, the One, the Unique.

Salātul-jamā'ah, Salātul-Jumu'ah, and Salātul-'Īd, not only deeply affect the prayer-performers intellectually and help them in their spiritual growth, but also strengthen the brotherly feelings among them and enhance their unity and solidarity. These congregational salawāt (prayers) are valuable Islamic symbols that must be carefully guarded and observed.

Salātul-'Āyāt (The Prayer of Signs of the Divine power)

Ṣalātul-'Āyāt (The prayer of Signs of the Divine Power)

here are people who get terribly frightened and sometimes faint because of witnessing natural phenomena like the eclipse of the sun (al-Kusūf) or of the moon (al-Khusūf) [i.e. the interception or obscuration, complete or in part, of the sun's light or of the moon's light by another celestial body.], earthquakes, typhoons, thunderbolts, storms, thunders, lightnings, floods, and other frightful natural occurrences.

In Islam these occurrences, like thousands of other natural phenomena are visible signs of the splendid system of the universe created by the Almighty Allah. Therefore, these are the signs (āyāt) which manifest the wisdom and power of Allah Almighty.

Mankind must ponder deeply over these happenings and should not abondon themselves to mere fancy or imagination.

So at the time of a lunar or a solar eclipse, one should not undertake superstitious actions or follow the illusive and fanciful beliefs, which are customary among many superstitious tribes and nations, 16 but he should deeply think of Allah, direct his heart towards Him, and perform two-rak'ah şalāt, and thus rid himself of the superstitious thoughts which may result when he witnesses such happenings.

When there are earthquakes, typhoons, thunderbolts, thunders, lightnings, storms, floods and similar occurrences, which cause general fear and panic, one should only think of Allah and realise that He has gifted man with the means to save himself from such natural disasters, and thereby escape their fearful consequences. One must find ways and use the means at one's disposal to save oneself and others from these calamities, so at the first opportunity, one must perform the two-rak'ah salāt, praise and thank Allah, ask him for more and more blessings and mercy, and by such communing with Allah, he can attain tranquillity and peace of mind.

The two-rak'ah Ṣalātul-'Āyāt is like Ṣalātuṣ-Ṣubḥ. The only difference is that in each rak'ah of ṣalāt, instead of one rukū', we have five. And in between every two rukū's, we recite Sūratul-Ḥamd and another surah from the Holy Qur'ān. The surah which is recited after Sūratul-Ḥamd can also be divided into five parts. We recite the first part and then perform rukū' and continue reciting each part thereafter between every two rukū's until we finish all the five parts of the sūrah. Therefore, we must choose a sūrah which contains five or more than five verses. For example, Sūrat al-Kāfīrūn (the Disbelievers) i.e. Surah 109.

Salātul-'Āyāt in its short form is performed as follows: We first say "Allāhu Akbat", then recite Sūratul-Ḥamd, and then say:

بِشْمِ اللَّهِ الرَّحْمٰنِ الرَّحِيمِ.

Bismi-Llāhi-r-Raḥmāni-r-Raḥim

(In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent the Merciful)

قُلْ يَا آيُهَا الْكَافِرُونَ.

Qul yā ayyuhal-Kāfirûn. (Say: O disbelievers!)

We then perform the first rukū', raise the head after it, stand upright and say:

لا أعبدُ ما تَعْبُدُونَ.

Lā a'budu mā ta'budūn.
(I do not worship that which you worship.

We then perform rukū' a second time, after which we raise the head, stand upright and say:

وَلَا أَنْتُمْ غَايِدُونَ مَا أَعْبُدُ.

Wa lā antum 'ābidūna mā a 'bud. (Nor do you worship Him Whom I worship.)

We again perform ruku for a third time, after which we raise the head again, stand upright and say:

ُ وَلَا آنَا غَابِدٌ مَا عَبَدْتُمْ. وَلَا آنْتُمْ غَابِدُونَ مَا آعْبُدُ.

Wa lā anā `ābidun mā `abadtum.

Wa lā antum `ābidūna mā a `bud.

(And I shall not worship that which you worship.

Nor will you worship Him Whom I worship.)

We then perform the fourth rukū', raise the head, stand upright and say.

Lakum dinukum wa liya Din.

(For you is your religion and for me is my religion.)

(The Holy Qur'an, 109: 1-6)

-1214 vill mil

We then perform the fifth rukū', raise the head, stand upright and perform sujūd twice on the ground.

After the second sujūd, we perform another rak'ah in the same manner, and then end the salāt after reciting the tashahhud and salām.

Du'ā' Al-Qunūt (Supplication)

What ever has been said so far is of the wājib (obligatory) actions and recitations in the şalāt.

Besides this, one can commune with Allah in his salawāt (prayers) the way he likes; he certainly wishes to tell Allah about his sorrows and desires, and express love and devotion to Him.

This kind of supplication is very good, desirable, and recommended especially in the second rak'ah of şalāt before rukū'. And if one forgets to recite it before the rukū' he can do it right after rukū', and it is called "qunūtuṣ-Ṣalāt". Everybody can commune with Allah reciting qunūt (as shown in Fig. 6), express love and devotion to Him and tell Him about his needs and wishes in any form or wording he chooses.

Salāt in the Language of the Holy Qur'ān

Salāt in the Language of the Holy Qur'ān

alem aller mederatoris, a magnitudo de la companya

From the very beginning of Islam, the Muslims have recited "adhān and iqāmah" (the calls for salāt) and the wājib parts of the salāt in Arabic which is the language of the Holy Our'an. Taking into consideration the fact that salāt is very vital and is the great slogan of Islam and the Islamic Ummah, the Muslims of the world should consider themselves as a single, solid entity and a single aspects Ummah. The common and means communication are necessary for the unity and solidarity of an Ummah. The Muslims organise the grand congregational salāt, Salātul-Jumu'ah, and the salāt of 'Îdul-'Adhā during the hajj rituals at Makkah every year where hundreds of thousands of Muslims, whose languages are different, gather together from different corners of the world. The essential parts of salāt, and adhān and igāmah which are the calls for salāt to the public, should better be in one common Islamic language so that everybody can understand it. And this common Islamic language should obvisouly be the language of the Holy Qur'an, namely Arabic.

The şalāt, adhān and iqāmah are recited in 29 short Arabic sentences.

Learning these 29 Arabic sentences along with their clear meaning is easy for anybody who is interested.

At present in the advanced countries, one's cognition of a foreign language is considered a part of the general knowledge. A great number of people in these countries speak at least one foreign language.

And this knowledge is regarded as a sign of the growth and advancement of every nation.

Therefore, the fact that the Muslims are duty-bound to learn the original wording of salāt in Arabic is in itself a motivation for raising the level of general knowledge of Muslims.

So, in the next pages we are going to repeat, one after another, the 29 sentences with their short translations to make their memorisation by heart easier.

- 2. The exact sign of the virtuous time for Salatul-'Asr in the Islamic jurisprudential books, is the time when the eastbound shadow of everything equals its own size.
- 3. The decisive sign of the sunset in the horizon is that the pinkish evening twilight, seen after sunset in the one-half of the eastern part of the sky, disappears completely.
- 4- It means the time when the evening twilight disappears completely from the border of the western horizon of the sky.
- 5. If it is midnight and a man has not yet performed his Ṣalātul-Maghrib or Ṣalātul-'Ishā', he must perform it before dawn without making his niyyah (intention) of either adā' (duly or in time), or qaḍā' (due at latertime)
- 6. Adhān and iqāmah, mentioned here, are as recorded in all the books of Shi'ah jurisprudence and are according to aḥādith of the infallible Imams (A.S.) after the prophet Muḥammad (S.A.), narrated in Shi'ah books on aḥādith. In "Ar-Risālatul-'Amaliyyah li Tawḍiḥil-Masā'il" (Treatise on practical Laws of Islam), Article No. (918), adhān and iqāmah have been mentioned in the same manner. Then in regard to the testification to the wilāyah (guardianship) of Imam 'Ali (A.S.), the following has been mentioned under Article (919) is not part of adhān and iqāmah, but it is good to say it after "Ashhadu anna Muḥammadan Rasūlu-Llāh" with the intention of acquiring pleasure of Allah."

"Ashhadu anna 'Aliyyan Waliyyul-Llāh."

7. Under the following conditions, instead of Wuda' or with Wuda' the whole body must be washed. This purification is called ghusl.

For men and women:

(a) After sexual intercourse or after seminal discharge.

(b) After touching the (human) corpse which has gone cold, and has not yet been given obligatory ghusl.

For women only

(c) At the end of hayd (menstrual period).

(d) At the end of nifas (discharge of blood after delivery)

(e) At the end of istihādah, which is extra-ordinary discharge of blood, at any undue time, whether fair or excessive.

Ghusl has two alternatives:

Either (a) irtimāsi, by which one should dip oneself once completely from head to feet; or (b) tartibi as follows: First wash the head, the neck, and hands, then half of the body on the right-hand side, and then wash the other half on the left-hand side. For ghusl it is enough if one washes his head and face, and then uses a wet towel, sponge or handkerchief for wiping half of the body on the right-hand side, and then the other half on the left-hand side.

Tayammum

If water is not available, or the worshipper, due to sickness or for any other reason, cannot utilize water for "wudā" or "ghust", he, instead, can touch the clean soil, sand or stone, with the palms of his hands once and wipe his forehead with them. Then once again he must touch the clean soil, and or stone in the same manner, and draw (wipe) the left palm on the back of the right hand, and then the right palm on the back of the left hand, starting from the wrist and going slowly down to the finer-tips.

The Holy Qur'an says:

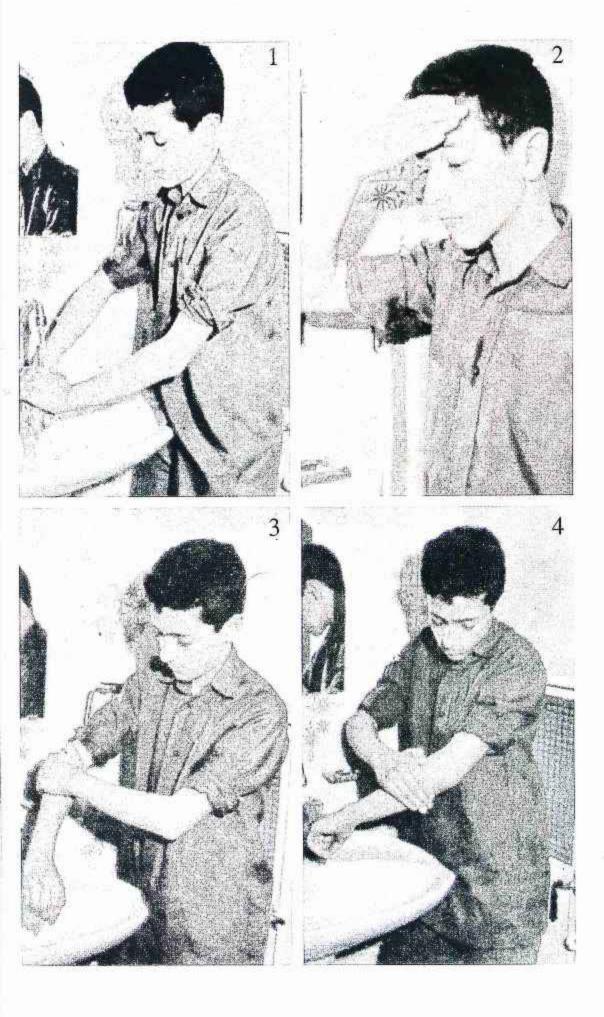

"...And if you cannot find water, betake yourselves to pure soil and wipe your faces and your hands with some of it. Allah does not desire to put on you any hardship..."

(The Holy Qur'an, 5: 6)

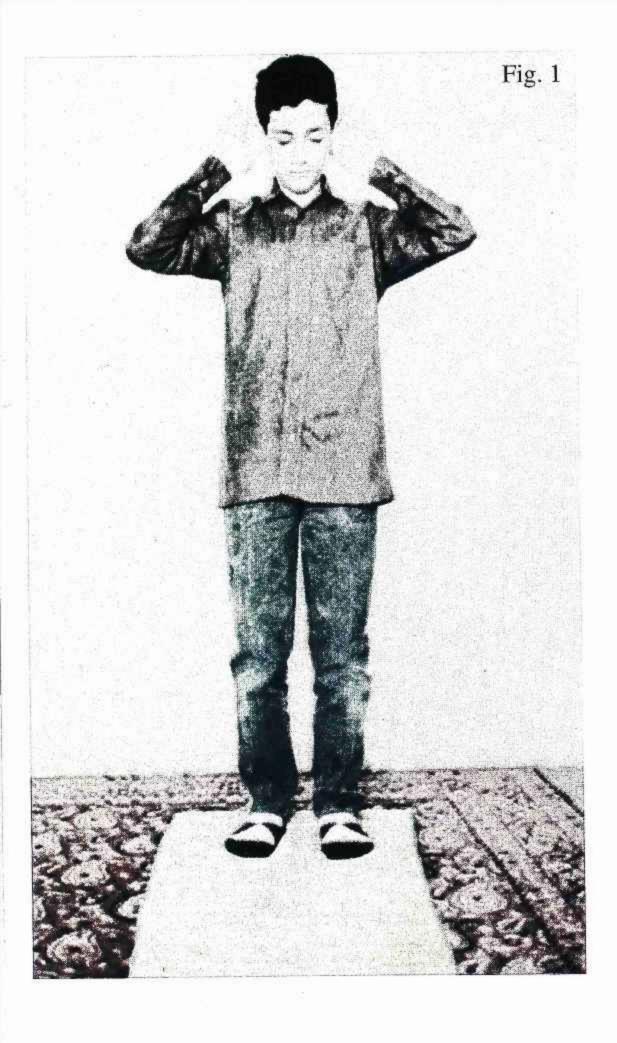

8. Some of the najāsāt (impurities) with which the body and clothes of the worshipper must not be polluted are as follows:
☐ A dog.
□ A pig.
Urine and faeces of human beings, and those animals whose meat is harām (prohibited) to eat, and whose blood gushes forth when a blood vessel of theirs is cut.
☐ Human blood and semen.
Blood and semen of all the animals whose blood gushes forth whether their meat is haram to eat or halal (permitted by Islam).
 Human corpse without ghuslul-mayyit (Islamic washing of the dead human body before burial) 	255
☐ Those animal corpses whose blood gushes forth.
9. For sujūd the forehead must be placed on the soil, dust, stone, of the like, or things which grow out of the soil, but are not used for eating or clothing. A small, round or oblong, earthen piece (turbah) carried and used for sujūd by us actually made from tāhir (pure) and clean soil.
10. This portion of prayer is called "tashahhud and salām". In salām of the şalāt, it suffices to say the last phrase only, i.e. "As-salām alaykum wa raḥmatu-Llāhi wa barakātuh".
11. In the first and second rak ahs of the Ṣalātuṣ-Ṣubḥ, Ṣalātul-Maghrib, and Ṣalātul-'Ishā', Sūratul-Ḥamd and another surah like At-Tawhid are recited aloud. And in the Ṣalātuz-Zuhr and Ṣalātul'Aṣr, these surahs are recited with a very low voice.

15. Ibid., vol. 2, p. 139
16. During the eclipse of the sun or of the moon, it is a common practice among many tribes to beat drums so as to frighten the gian dragons which, according to their belief, come out while swallowing the sun or moon. These giant dragons, described mythically, may be possibly due to the shadow of the earth or the moon, which is the real cause of the eclipses. But there is no doubt that the beating of drums to scare the dragons is a fanciful and superstitious custom.
